Qoria

Keeping your child safe online: what UAE law now asks of parents

Since 1 January 2026, the UAE Child Digital Safety Law gives every parent and guardian a role in keeping children safe online. Here's what that means for your family, and how we can help.

What the law asks of you

Monitor what your child does online, in a way that suits their age.

Use parental controls on the devices and apps your child uses.

Respect age limits. Don't create accounts for your child on apps that aren't right for their age.

Protect their privacy. Don't share your child's photos or personal details in ways that could harm them.

Report harmful content or anyone trying to exploit your child.

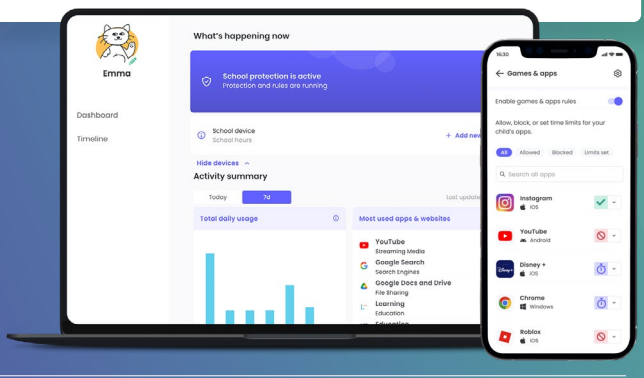

Social media and the age of 15

- ✕ Children under 15 can't have their own social media accounts, even with a parent's permission.
- ✓ Fifteen-year-olds can, with restricted settings and parental tools switched on.

Five things you can do this week:

- ☐ Talk to your child about what they do online, and who they talk to.
- ☐ Check the age rating of the apps and games they use.
- ☐ Switch on parental controls on their phone, tablet and laptop.
- ☐ Agree family rules for screen time, including device-free times.
- ☐ Know how to report harmful content, and tell your child they can always come to you.

How your school helps: protect students on school devices and networks. Ask us about tools that let you do the same at home.

Brought to you by Qoria, the company behind Qustodio parental control app.

Qoria is a global leader in student digital safety and wellbeing, supporting 32,000 schools and protecting 30 million children. Through Qustodio, the leading parental control app, Qoria extends that protection to families at home, helping UAE schools and parents meet new digital-safety standards together.

Sources: Federal Decree-Law No. 26 of 2025, Art. 13 · Cabinet Resolution No. 106 of 2026, Art. 3 · Ministry of Family guidance for families

qoria.eu